Profile

I believe I possess traits that are desirable to prospective employers such as leadership, strong work ethic and an ability to form healthy relationships with co workers. Having worked in a variety of environments across the few years I have been a part of the workforce, I have been able to meet and understand a diverse range of people. I have a sense of humor that is quite relatable and allows me to build rapport with customers and colleagues relatively quickly, providing a comfortable experience for everyone. My work ethic comes primarily from growing up on a farm, helping my parents on the weekends to maintain the property. I'm a keen learner and am happy and willing to do whatever is asked of me from an employer.

Working at Etihad stadium during the AFL season in the retail food and beverage stores. The environment was full of extreme rushes of customers during the breaks of the game and required me to prepare as well as serve food and beverages at a high pace. Another requirement of the job was to maintain a clean and presentable workspace.

Carlisle Bendigo Pty Ltd Laborer

Working in a sheep skin warehouse I was subject to physical labor for extended periods of time. It required a high work ethic and persistence through hot conditions.
